Mission Accomplished: Stop The Clock: A Personal Memoir ...

It is billed as a personal memoir. It is more an autobiography of a strong, accomplished, attractive woman. There are parts about WWII but from a woman's viewpoint including feminine humor and concerns about clothes being feminine while buzz bombs fly overhead.

Belgium the Battle of the Bulge | No Time for Fear: Nurses ...

MISSION ACCOMPLISHED: STOP THE CLOCK by Muriel Phillips Engelman is a personal memoir of a nurse who saw up close how the winter of 1944-1945 changed the war in Europe. With the 16th General Hospital, Muriel recalls from memory and letters crossing the English Channel a few weeks after the D Day invasion of Normandy and having to wade ashore.

Mission Accomplished: Stop the Clock by Muriel Engelman

The American octogenarian's memoir, "Mission Accomplished: Stop the Clock" is filled with remarkably recalled details, humorous and heartbreaking stories, all focusing on what seems to be her favorite pastime: the wry, humorous but ultimately affectionate observation of people.
